Bethel tax rate could hit $31

Bethel's tax rate for the coming fiscal year could reach $31 per $1,000 of assessed valuation if current spending projections are borne out. Selectmen this week blamed the expected increase—up from $25 in the current fiscal year—on the school district budget.

Selectman Pat Dooen said the school assessments to the five towns that make up the school district will increase by an average of 52 percent. She offered the following figures, obtained from the school district office:

• For Andover, the assessment will increase 60 percent: from last year's $366,301 to this year's $588,785.

• For Greenwood, the assessment will increase 47 percent: from last year's $208,846 to this year's $305,899.

• For Newry, the assessment will increase 60 percent: from $127,385 to $204,294.

• For Woodstock, the assessment will increase 49 percent: from $120,029 to $243,836.

• For Bethel, the assessment will increase 49 percent: from $474,004 to $708,192.

"If Bethel has to suffer a 35 percent increase in taxes to cover the school budget, it's mind boggling," Mrs. Dooen said, indicating that one of the reasons for the steep school assessment was the salaries being paid to teachers. She claimed that teachers work 190 days for $18,000, which amounts to $13 an hour. "They are not underpaid," she said.

Adding to Bethel's budget woes is the fact that federal revenue sharing received by the town is expected to decrease to $18,000, from last year's $55,000. In addition, insurance premiums for the town are doubling.

The selectmen Monday night gave the town manager the authority to use the federal money in the budget, and to use the $5,000 expected from Gould Academy in lieu of taxes.

In other action Monday night, the selectmen gave the town manager authority to send a letter to the county commissioners informing them that Bethel Ambulance Service will continue to service Mason Township and the Zenus Mills Road portion of Albany, at an annual assessment of $100. Earlier this month, the commissioners replaced Bethel Ambulance Service with Stoneham Rescue for coverage of the majority of Albany.

In other ambulance developments, the selectmen agreed to have published a legal advertisement notifying Upton residents that Bethel ambulance will not cover their town after June 1, as a result of their town meeting action refusing to pay the increased assessment asked by Bethel. The selectmen further ordered the town manager to bill Upton through May for the service being rendered.

The selectmen went into executive session to discuss concealed weapons permits.

Andover tax rate could jump by 5 mills

Faced by the increased school assessment and the lowered valuation of the COMSAT property, the Andover selectmen are concerned there will likely be a large jump in the town's tax rate.

Although they don't yet know the county assessment, and although the school budget has not yet been approved by the voters, the selectmen expect the tax rate to be about $18 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. This would be an increase of about five mills over this past year's tax rate.

The selectmen contacted the Maine Municipal Association on the manner in which the question of accepting the new ladder truck was decided. The MMA supported the selectmen's use of a special town meeting to decide the issue, pointing out that only a vote of the townspeople can legally decide such an issue. (The special town meeting voted to not accept the new ladder truck.)

The selectmen have been busy doing assessing work. Selectmen Raymond Hutchins and Arthur Myshrall are out looking at properties, while Selectman Laura Hutchins has been in the office figuring tree growth. In a related matter, Charles Burnham has nearly completed work updating the tax maps.

The office got its computer this week—a Tandy 1000 purchased from a Lewiston firm. The computer, monitor, printer and software came to under $4,000—the amount allocated for the system by town meeting. The town office hopes to use the system for keeping voter lists up to date and for billing taxes.

The selectmen discussed hiring a local person to haul away the white goods and junked cars at the town dump in order to lessen the possibility of someone getting hurt by tripping or falling over them.

IS THERE ROOM FOR MORE? A state prisoner stands in the dayroom of one of the four cellblocks of the Oxford County jail, in South Paris. Jail supervisor Sgt. Ernest Martin says state prison officials would like to house more of their prisoners in county jails and he thinks it could work if the penal regulations could be revised to allow two bunks per cell. (Two cells can be seen in the center rear.) Sgt. Martin says the county could make a lot of money boarding state prisoners.

Oxford County jail could be affected by prison changes

With the governor saying he'll bring lawmakers back into special session to discuss what to do about the state's correctional system, officers at the Oxford County Jail are wondering what might be in store for their facility.

Built in 1979 at a cost of $960,000, the county jail, located in South Paris, can comfortably accommodate 27 inmates: 24 men housed six per cellblock in the four blocks, one female and two juveniles.

Despite the rated capacity, the jail has been known to hold up to 37 people. This is done by putting cots in the day rooms of the cellblocks and becomes necessary when the OUI offenders serve their 48 hours—usually on weekends.

The jail supervisor, Sgt. Ernest Martin, said his facility could accommodate more than 50 inmates, if the Department of Corrections would change its guidelines on how much cell space each prisoner must have. "If we could double-bunk, it would be very profitable," said Sgt. Martin. The state gives the county $35-$40 for each state prisoner housed in the county facility. (At present, the county jail houses three state prisoners, one prisoner from the state juvenile correctional center, and one prisoner from the overcrowded Kennebec County jail.)

Currently, each prisoner has his own little room and shares a common area with his cellblock-mates. In the common area—or dayroom—the prisoners eat, watch TV, play cards, smoke.

Some prisoners are given chores to do, but most are not. The more-serious offenders are kept in cellblocks A and B and are kept locked in their dayrooms all day and in their individual cells all night. They are given one hour of recreation outdoors each day.

The less-serious offenders are housed in cellblocks C and D and are given jobs to do around the jail, such as working in the kitchen or the laundry or doing maintenance. One inmate is presently on a work-release program, going to work in the morning and coming back in the afternoon.

Sgt. Martin admits that the recreation hour is less for excercise than for a

THE REMODELING OF THE A&P into a new health center took on an added dimension this week when the front portion of the roof of the building collapsed. Contractor Jim Knight said no one was hurt in the Monday afternoon accident and estimated the unforseen happening would set him back just a couple of days. He had originally planned to tie in the new peaked roof over the existing flat roof with the existing peaked portion of the old supermarket roof. Now he will start with a clean slate, so to speak. He blamed the collapse on the fact that the front concrete block pillars holding up the roof I-beam were not reinforced and buckled as soon as work began on the roof. Some of the side wall were also destroyed. The diner, however, was not damaged when the supermarket roof let go.

Famous Dartmouth prof selected to speak at Gould Commencement

Headmaster William P. Clough III announced that the Commencement speaker for Gould Academy's Sesquicentennial class will be Professor John Rassias.

Dr. Rassias is the William R. Keenan Professor of French at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., and is the originator of the High Energy and High Effective Approach at Teaching Language.

His concepts introduce many dramatic techniques into the teaching of language and have been adapted by universities and colleges throughout the world.

In 1978-79 he served as a member of President Carter's Commission on Foreign Languages and International Studies to develop policy guidelines for foreign language study.

Professor Rassias is the author of many books and is the main language developer for the Peace Corps. He was honored as one of the 10 best teachers in the United States and was presented the E. Harris Harbison Award for gifted teaching. He was cited by the government of France with its Palmes Academiques for his contribution to American understanding of the history and culture of France. He has most recently completed an 11-hour series of televised courses in French for CBS/Fox.

The 84 seniors of Gould Academy's 150th class will graduate on Saturday, May 24, at 10:30 a.m. It is certain that Dr. Rassias will deliver an address they will long remember. His active role in the graduation exercises fits in well with the Academy's Sesquicentennial theme: "Great Teaching."

MSAD #44

Directors' meeting

The SAD #44 Board of Directors met in regular session at the Andover Elementary School on Monday evening of this week.

As this was the first regular meeting in April, a chairman and vice chairman were selected for the ensuing year. Darline Hall of Andover is to serve as chairman and Merton Brown of Bethel as vice chairman of the directors for the next 12 months.

A member of the board for a decade, Mrs. Hall will be serving as chairman for her third term. Completing his third year on the panel, Mr. Brown will be a candidate for re-election in Bethel voting on June 10.

Debra Poland of Woodstock, elected last month to succeed Paul Hillquist, was sworn in as were re-elected board members, Daniel Cole and Nancy Dewing of Greenwood, and Rex Thurston of Andover. Gail Sysko, elected in Newry at their annual meeting, was unable to attend the Monday session.

The board approved the re-admission of a 16-year-old freshman to Telstar, who had been expelled with possibility of readmission as a student if counseling was received.

The following were approved as substitute teachers: Kelly Bickford, Locke Mills; Linda Couture, Rumford Point; Nancy MacKillop, Bryant Pond; Judith MacLaughlin, West Paris; and

Sunday River still skiing after other areas close

Sunday River Ski Resort was still attracting skiers this week, and still had ample snow—even on "Agony"—to accommodate them.

Marketing Director Wende Gray said Sunday River was the only area in Maine and New Hampshire still operating. She said Attitash, in North Conway, N.H., and Sugarloaf both closed after last weekend. Sunday River still plans to be skiing the first of May, she said.

With the few inches of wet snow that fell over the weekend, Ms. Gray recalculated the season total, coming up with 127 inches on the top of Barker Mountain—the same total as last year.

Plea bargain struck in Jody Perham case

The district attorney and the defense attorney for Jody Perham have worked out an agreement for the disposition of the case, according to the DA's office.

By the terms of the agreement, Mr. Perham will plead guilty to some of the charges against him and the case will be heard in Androscoggin County next month.

Complete details of the agreement were not available at press time, and defense attorney David Whittier pointed out that the agreement might amount to nothing when the defendant appears before the judge.

"The fact that the district attorney's office and I have reached an agreement doesn't amount to diddly," Mr. Whittier said. "Thirty seconds before he pleads guilty, he (Perham) can change his mind and say 'No way.'"

Mr. Whittier was unhappy that the DA's office released the information about the plea bargain agreement, though he conceded that it was all public record. "To put in the paper that he plans to change his plea is extremely prejudicial," Mr. Whittier contended. "The whole thing is premature...It's not newsworthy because it hasn't happened."

Mr. Perham is in the county jail facing charges that he attempted to murder two people in West Paris during an assault in the early-morning hours of July 6. Related to that alleged incident, he also is charged with three counts of assault and one count of arson. He also faces charges resulting from his escape from jail Sept. 22. At his indictment, last October, he pleaded innocent to all the charges lodged against him.

W. Paris selectmen award loan bid

The West Paris Board of Selectmen opened sealed loan bids for a new bucket loader last Thursday night and awarded the loan to Key Bank of Southern Maine. The town will borrow $13,300 (the trade-in difference between the 1973 Michigan loader and the new one) at 5.80 percent for two years.

The board also voted to declare a road off the Tuell Town Road which meets the Forbes Road at the Ellingwood Road intersection discontinued under Title 23, Section 3028.

In other business, the selectmen decided to solicit bids for the 1954 GMC fire truck. Selectmen Duane Abbott also reported the findings of his meeting with J.A. Harriman Associates, Inc. and H.E. Callahan Construction. The library roof will need to be repaired, but not replaced.

Committee formed to investigate converting ex-school into town office

The Greenwood selectmen last night (Tuesday) appointed seven residents as a committee to explore materials and methods for conversion of the old Locke Mills schoolhouse into an energy-efficient municipal building. Wallace Morgan, Mellen Kimball, Wayne Redman, Hugh Swan, Art Wiesner, Max Pulsifer and Leland Dunham will meet at the town hall tomorrow, April 17, at 7 p.m., to select a chairman and begin working on conversion plans.

The selectmen reviewed the school assessment to the district towns, as prepared by the district office. (See article on Bethel budget for further details on the assessments.) Concerned about an increase of 46 percent in Greenwood's assessment, the selectmen urged local taxpayers to attend the district budget meeting May 28 when the SAD #44 budget will be put to a vote.

"Has he been Miranda'd?"

In just about every cop show, there's always a lieutenant or a captain who asks the cop who brings in the "perp" (perpetrator): "Has he been Miranda'd?"—which, as every schoolchild knows, means, "Has he been informed of his rights to remain silent." And, of course, if he makes a statement without being informed of his Miranda rights, any case against him is finished before it begins.

But what about this situation? On page 8 of the IRS pamphlet on how to fill out a 1040 Form, which most Americans finally finished with this week, the bureaucrats list all the types of income that must be reported to the government. The last item on the list is, "Embezzled or other illegal income."

Imagine this possible notation on a 1040 return: "I got 10,000 from dis guy for wastin' dis udda guy. But I'm deductin' 300 for da .357 magnum I needed for da job. Also 100 to buy me a raincoat—in order ta conceal da piece, ya know. An' by da way, since you guys didn't Miranda me, don't expect me ta ever go ta court fa dis rubout."

Or maybe: "I invested $50,000 in a cocaine importation scheme, which grossed $10 million. However, after paying off the couriers, net income was just $9 million. I'm deducting the million I paid for my new house. In this business you need a classy mansion in which to entertain buyers. It's a pleasure doing business with you, and thank you for not Miranda'ing me."

While it's comforting to see that the IRS wants all Americans to pay their fair share, whether their income was derived from beneficial or harmful activities, it would be even more comforting if the IRS would place the following proviso on everyone's 1040: "Notice: In exchange for a portion of your hard-earned money, your government pledges to you that this money will be used only to further the health and welfare of the American people. None of this money will be used to purchase $600 toilet seats, and none will be given to foreign dictators to line their own pockets or to tobacco farmers to produce a crop that turns teenagers into addicts and then kills them. We promise you that your tax dollars will never be used to harass, kill, injure or otherwise harm or put in jeopardy the populace we are pledged to serve."

A note from the publisher

You've no doubt read and seen on the TV screen about the Filipino workers at the U.S. bases in the Philippines barricading the gates and not allowing anyone on or off the bases. There have been some scuffles, and tempers on both sides are wearing thin.

Reporters in the Philippines have been reporting on an increase of anti-American sentiment. This in a country which, following World War II, nurtured a strong statehood movement trying to make the PI (Philippine Islands, in the jargon of the time) into one of the then-48 states.

What has happened?

Basically what has happened is that we Americans, with the best of intentions, have set up wealthy enclaves in a country that's mostly dirt poor. This cannot help but engender feelings of oppression, helplessness and envy among the native population.

When I was in San Francisco a couple of weeks ago, I and my wife, stepdaughter and her boyfriend were all guests of Lupita Aquino Kashiwahara at the showing of her film, "Minsay Isang Gamu-Gamo," ("Once There Was a Moth"). Ms. Kashiwahara is the sister-in-law of Philippine President Corazon Aquino and the wife of ABC-TV reporter Ken Kashiwahara.

She and I go back a long ways, to when I was a foreign correspondent in the Philippines and she was a blacklisted TV producer under Ferdinand Marcos' martial law. She was a good source of information on the jailed opposition leaders, most notably her brother, the slain Ninoy Aquino. And she was a good friend. When she finally got permission to leave the Philippines in 1978, she asked me to see her safely through the Marcos goons at the airport, which I did.

Her film—"Once There Was a Moth,"—was one of the four or five serious films produced during the Marcos dictatorship. (The bulk of the films done under Marcos censorship were crime films, sex films, and comedies. Political films, such as Ms. Kashiwahara's, were generally considered taboo.) It tells the story of two families living near the main U.S. bases (Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base—both a couple of hours north of Manila), and how these families are driven to hate Americans as the result of indignities suffered at the hands of base personnel acting under extraterritorial provisions of the bases treaty.

The families involved have come from other parts of the country in order to get some crumbs from the Americans' table. They realize their uncomfortable position. "We are like moths drawn to a flame," one of the characters says.

And so they are. This accounts for the approximately 15,000 prostitutes who live and work around the bases.

The heroine of the movie is a nurse who gives up her plans of emigrating to the U.S. after her brother is killed by a U.S. jet fighter on a practice bombing run. (Such incidents are not uncommon, as Filipinos scavenge spent, and unspent, ammunition at U.S. bombing and gunnery ranges.) The heroine's change of heart is announced when she tells her mother: "Once there was a moth who dared eagles."

The showing of the film, made in 1976, was in conjunction with San Francisco's annual Asian Film Festival. Preceding the film, Professor Joel Rocamora put the issue of the bases in political perspective. (Mr. Rocamora was an economics professor at the University of the Philippines prior to Marcos declaring martial law in 1972. He was forced into hiding because of his political views and finally—after intervention by the U.S. State Department—was allowed to go into exile in the U.S. He teaches Philippine studies at the University of California at Berkeley.)

Mr. Rocamora said: "The issue (of the bases) has become a very important issue for a growing number of Filipinos...The (the bases) constitute a center in which American intervention in Philippine affairs can be organized."

He noted that the rebel helicopters that took part in unseating Mr. Marcos were refueled at Clark Air Base. While he was pleased with the outcome—that is, the ouster of Mr. Marcos—he thought the means established a dangerous precedent.

More importantly, he questioned whether the bases were a help or a hindrance to the Filipino people. "Because of the bases, Russian missiles are targeted at the Philippines," he said. And because the United States uses the bases to project military might into southeast Asia and beyond, Filipinos get involved in U.S. conflicts abroad, such as in Vietnam—where Philippine battalions served at the request of the U.S.

"The bases serve as a funnel by which American military strength is projected to India, Africa and the mideast...(but) whether they are important for the defense of the American people is a question the American people have to answer."

Following the showing of the film, Ms. Kashiwahara answered questions from the audience, including a question on what the Philippine government plans to do about the bases. She gave the same answer President Aquino gives whenever she's asked that question: "We're still going to negotiate in 1991 (when the current five-year agreement expires). Until then we're keeping our options open."

If the characters in Ms. Kashiwahara's film are to believed, and if Mr. Rocamora's analysis is correct, there may not be any options by 1991. The bases may have outlived their welcome.

During the presidential campaign that ultimately placed Cory Aquino in the president's seat, Lupita Aquino Kashiwahara served as her sister-in-law's media coordinator. As such, she continued the role she had assumed as soon as her brother was arrested and taken to solitary confinement (a few hours before Marcos declared martial law, in 1972).

Ever the optimist, Lupita told me she realized back in November, when Marcos first announced on Ted Koppel's "Nightline," that he would hold a snap election, that the opposition could defeat him. She said she immediately called Cory in Manila and told her she should run in the election. Cory, who had been fast asleep, told her she was going back to sleep but would think about it.

Soon thereafter, Lupita and husband Ken (who took a leave of absence from his reporting duties so as to avoid any conflict of interest) went to Manila to work on Cory's campaign.

The most difficult hurdle to be cleared was the fact that the opposition was splintered, and Salvador Laurel—who led the largest opposition party—wanted to run for president himself. She said it was Jaime Cardinal Sin, the Catholic prelate of the Philippines, who turned things around. "The cardinal said," she recalled for me, "'I don't care who's president and vice-president, just get your act together.' Unification was an absolute miracle." The unified opposition resulted, of course, in Mr. Laurel settling for the number-two spot on the ticket.

Polling more votes than Marcos was not a miracle at all, however. According to Lupita, early polls by her people showed Marcos losing. "You guys [the foreign journalists] misread the whole thing," she informed me.

Husband Ken Kashiwahara disagreed. What he saw was Cory Aquino drawing huge and sympathetic crowds. But he thought the crowds would still vote for Marcos when the chips were down. Or the vote would be close enough so that Marcos could steal it. He could not say what turned things around, but thought it might have been the fact that after weeks of playing on the crowds' sympathy, widow Aquino began frontally attacking Marcos' policies and presenting her own alternatives. Lupita concurred that it was only in the final days of the campaign that Marcos woke up to the fact that he would lose an honest election. He then began campaigning vigorously, she said, but it was too late.

I asked Professor Rocamora, a harsh critic of former Manila governments, whether he thought President Aquino could make a real change in the way Philippine governments tend to govern for the benefit of the country's wealthy elite. He said he was hopeful and was willing to wait and see.

He cited as hopeful signs the establishment of a civil rights panel to look into past abuses, and he had high praise for the release of all political detainees.

What worried him was the fact that many of Marcos' henchmen turned and joined the rebellion after Defense Minister Enrile announced that he was supporting Aquino and not Marcos. He cited the case of Rudolfo Aguinaldo, an Army officer responsible for the arrest and torture of many of Mr. Rocamora's friends. He was a lieutenant when the mass political arrests began in 1972. Under Enrile's protection, following his defection to the Aquino side, Aguinaldo is now a colonel.

Mr. Rocamora said if the civil rights panel can weed out these Marcos henchmen, the communist rebellion may run out of issues with which to criticize the military establishment and gain new recruits.

Also in response to readers' suggestions, we have changed the lead-off day in the listings from Wednesday to Thursday. (This is because, although we publish Wednesday and get the paper to as many readers as possible on that day, subscribers on rural routes and readers who aren't able to purchase the paper on Wednesday get shortchanged by a day.)

We hope the changes are satisfactory to all concerned. If you have any other suggestions—about the TV guide or whatever—don't hesitate to bring them to the attention of any of us here at The Citizen.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

We have just returned from a lovely weekend stay at The Bethel Inn, with one exception—we received a parking ticket. As guests of the Inn we assumed we could park within the confines of the Inn property, legally, but the Bethel police obviously don't agree.

How does the Inn expect to encourage guests to stay with "No Parking" signs all around the property in this modern day of automobiles? It's fine to keep the Inn as a place where one can enjoy the century-old atmosphere of days gone by, but we no longer arrive in horse and buggies! The Bethel Inn has got to "modernize" their thinking about providing legal parking for all their guests, or we, for one, will not return again.

Also, we would like to take exception to an article appearing in the April 2nd edition of The Citizen regarding promotional material to be inserted in the "more affluent" north of Boston newspapers. What is wrong with those of us who choose to live south of Boston? Are we not "affluent" enough to visit Bethel? I think The Citizen should be more careful in its choice of words, or we, who live south of Boston, will cancel our subscription.

Mrs. Alan J. Myette
So. Easton, Mass.

To the Editor:

A bill, numbered LD 2249, was just defeated by both houses of the Maine Legislature. The significance of that fact is that by defeating that bill, our own representatives and senators denied us our right to vote. Not on who will be running for office in November, but on one issue. That issue is whether we wish to have high-level nuclear waste produced in Maine after 1989 from the generation of electricity.

LD 2249 was not a bill to close Maine Yankee. It was a bill to allow the voters to decide.

A number of citizens, particularly those who recently found their homes included in the (area) the Department of Energy has designated as proposed high-level nuclear dumpsites, attended the hearings on the bill at considerble personal expense and discomfort. The hearing room was already filled with people paid to be there by Central Maine Power/Maine Yankee, so the citizens had to gather in the halls, or stand outside in the rain to look in the windows. Yet the opinion of the legislators was that the issue was a dead issue, and the citizens were not interested in it any more.

The Senate said they defeated the bill because they felt the people of the state had already made their opinions on generating high-level nuclear waste known two prior times.

The House said they defeated the bill for the same reason.

Our legislators may have served us well in deciding to save us one more referendum to read at the polls in November, and saving us the trouble of having to check one more box. Or they served the interests of CMP/Maine Yankee, because they suspected that the voters are now a lot more informed on what the true price of electricity generated by nuclear reactors is, and would, if given another chance, vote to stop the creation of any more high-level nuclear waste in this state. Or they felt the voters do not have enough sense to decide on such an important issue themselves. There really are no other valid reasons for keeping an issue from the voters.

I have discovered that a voter can get a list of how all senators and representatives voted on this bill simply by calling Augusta, 289-1400, and asking for it.

I find more and more burdens put on me as a taxpayer and fewer and fewer rights and privileges granted. The right to vote is one of the few I have left and I mightily resent having my elected officials taking that right away from me. So I will be calling that Augusta number before I cast another vote for my legislators, because I want to know how they feel about my right to vote. Regardless of what they've said, I know actions speak louder than words.

To the Editor:

I wish to compliment you on our paper. You are doing a very good job. However there is one question I wish to ask you. The church schedules have always been in the beginning of the paper, so why have you put it at the end?

Editor's Note: For the past year the church schedules have on the next to last page of back of the paper, although for many years they appeared on page four. Newspapers traditionally place any regular features—church listings or other regularly occurring features—towards the back of the paper.

To the Editor:

My hometown, Andover, it appears has put the worship of the almighty dollar above the worship of the Lord.

I have just read in The Citizen that Andover has refused a very, very vital piece of firefighting equipment, apparently because it cost too much. I ask you, what pricetag do we place on our precious human life?

Remember, Andover, that God helps those who help themselves. May God bless you abundantly.

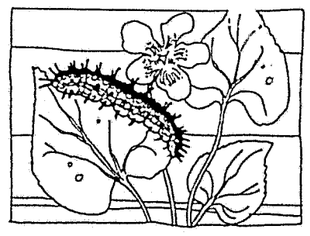
The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts

Violets—A Bloomin' Ground Cover Plus Food For Wildlife

Violets provide a beautiful, flowering, lush, green ground cover especially wherever they can be contained within planting beds. For a different kind of lawn, in moist, shady areas, violets might replace the traditional grasses commonly used as ground covers. I've been introducing violets into my yard for a year now. There are many varieties to choose from: over 70 species native to the U.S., plus another 50 or 60 kinds, if you count European varieties and horticultural cultivars.



We expect to see violets growing in somewhat shady places. Some violets, however, grow in well-drained, barren, hot spots or in prairies. The birdsfoot violet, Viola pedata, one of the most desirable of native species, has a thick, stubby, vertical root resembling that of the beautiful butterfly weed. Because of this upright root system, birdsfoot violets do not exhibit the rampant spreading of other kinds.

Besides providing an effective ground cover, violets are most useful to butterflies—particularly those large, orange, black and white species known as fritillaries. This large group ranges throughout the U.S. and southern Canada and may first be drawn to your yard by buddleia, milkweeds, thistles and other plants that you may grow for the nectar they provide the adults. It's when these beautiful butterflies lay their eggs however, that violets become a vital link in their annual life cycle.

Many female fritillaries lay their eggs in the fall, on or, more likely, near the violets. Leaves and flowers of violets become the primary food of the caterpillars when they first hatch in the spring. As the caterpillars (often orange- and black-striped) mature, they may become nocturnal munchers, seen only if you poke around your violets at night.

Other kinds of butterflies, such as the falcate orange-tip, and other insects may seek out violets for their early spring nectar. Other creatures too find violets tasty: rabbits, for instance. Violet-eating rabbits may actually be allies, since their persistent eating can retard the too-rapid spreading of the violets—without seriously harming the lush violet carpeting. Cardinals and other birds avidly seek out the violets' numerous seeds.

To tell the truth, enjoying wild foods as I do, I like to snack on violets too—the leaves and, especially, the flowers. Some people like their violets candied as a condiment. I prefer them as a garden snack—plain, plucked from my insecticide—free garden and popped in my mouth and munched—just like a rabbit!

Violets come in a huge variety of shades, from the multicolor pansies to the sweet, fragrant whites, tall-stemmed yellows, blues, purples, lavenders and magentas. A good way to start collecting violets is to get your friends to share their plantings: they'll always have plenty to spare.

THIS IS AN ARTIST'S SKETCH of the planned Tri-Town rescue barn, expected to be constructed at Trap Corner.

Tri-Town to build rescue barn

Tri-Town Rescue, a volunteer ambulance service for the towns of Greenwood, Sumner, West Paris and Woodstock, voted last Thursday night to build a two-bay ambulance barn and training room on Rte. 26 at Trap Corner.

At a special general membership meeting, members voted to purchase the 220-foot by 140-foot lot north of the Three Squares sawmill from Dick Baker, conditional upon a successful soils test. The land has access to town water.

The estimated cost of construction of the facility, including excavation, is $70,000. The Tri-Town building committee has asked vocational Region 11 to construct the facility, which could shave $15,000 from this estimate. Region 11 Director Walter "Bud" Lowell said the building trades class doesn't have a project for the fall and would be interested. He will bring the proposal before the next Region 11 board meeting May 1.

The 36x52-foot building would house one ambulance, one equipment van, one training/meeting room and an office, and would have kitchen and laundry facilities. The plans, drawn by Warren Emery, of West Paris, include storage shelves for training supplies and ambulance equipment. Currently, all training materials are moved to a different location for the monthly training meetings and ongoing first aid courses.

The ambulance now housed in Bryant Pond, in the town garage, would stay there, to continue coverage of Bryant Pond and Greenwood.

Tri-Town would discontinue use of the old fire station in West Paris, where the second ambulance is now housed.

The members agreed it would take a lot of work to raise the needed funds for the rescue barn—approximately $20,000. The service has already set aside some $35,000 for capital investment during the past five years of existence.

A walk/bike-a-thon is planned for April 27, at 1 p.m., at the Agnes Gray School, to travel along Rte. 219 to Greenwood City and back to the school. Pledge forms are available from any member and from the elementary school offices.

The door-to-door canvass is scheduled for early-May, with Tri-Town members planning to visit each member in the four towns, asking for donations to the building fund.

In addition, several activities are planned for the summer.

Boise and union start negotiations

Boise Cascade, in Rumford, began negotiations with the 1,200-member Local #900 of the United Papermakers International Union Monday. At Monday's meeting, the two sides merely exchanged their positions. The next meeting will be this Friday, with two more meetings set for next week.

Union President Donald Barker said the union negotiating team intends to question Boise officials Friday about the company's desire to trim medical benefits.

Mr. Barker declined to outline his team's demands. But earlier he had told The Citizen: "Naturally we'll go for a salary increase."

Mr. Barker said it was unusual for the company to start the negotiating process this early. Usually the process begins in May.

The current three-year contract expires June 30 and there has been some discussion as to whether the company would want another three-year contract.

The company spokesman could not be contacted for comment.

For union personnel wanting to keep abreast of the negotiations, the union has set up a negotiation hot line where callers will get a recorded message, updated as the situation changes. The number is 364-7261.

The current contract guarantees a starting wage of $9.21 an hour and rises as high as $17. Most workers in the plant earn about $12 an hour, union and company officials said.

Aside from the 1,200 workers covered by the union contract, there are another 300-plus salaried personnel at Boise, according to a company official.

SAD #44 BOARD MEETS

Rachel Nevitt, Auburn.

Authorization was granted to post vacancies in the following positions for the 1986-87 school year: kindergarten (full-time), Woodstock Elementary School (Mrs. Margaret Davis will retire at the end of the current school year); developmental kindergarten, Ethel Bisbee School (Mrs. Ruth Silver is resigning at the end of the current year); instructional aide (full time), Ethel Bisbee School, for kindergarten and Chapter I, one year only (Mrs. Norma Salway will be on an educational leave of absence); business educational teacher (full time), Telstar Regional High School (Mrs. Frances Lodge has stated she will not return next year).

The directors granted final approval to a District Homework Policy. Opinions were expressed concerning the workability of the policy as approved, with the thinking being that it should be more specific in its language. The text of the policy follows: "Students should understand that they are in school to learn and that teachers are here to teach. Students in SAD #44 schools, especially in the upper grades, are expected to do homework as part of their total educational experience. Homework assignments supplement, complement, and reinforce classroom teaching and learning. Homework is not to be viewed as busy work, but as work directed to assist students in mastering the course objectives. Homework should always be reviewed by the teacher to assess the progress of students. It is our belief that homework: develops responsibility; extends formal training to the home; gives parents the opportunity to participate in their child's learning; provides an opportunity for the reinforcement of basic skills; gives students experience in working on long-term projects. Included within the teacher evaluation process, each teacher should be reviewed as to how they assign and correct homework. This would also include teacher lesson planning and classroom teaching techniques."

Granted initial first reading approval was a change in policy, concerning "Promotions," that would require high school students in the Job Entry Academic Curriculum program to have two (instead of three) credits each in Math, Science, and Social Studies for graduation. Each student in the Job Entry Academic Curriculum program would have to have a minimum of two years in any combination of Industrial Arts (Graphic Arts, Metals, or Woodworking), Home Economics or Business Education year-long courses.

The directors accepted a gift of a book titled "Life—How Did It Get Here? By Evolution or Creation?" for the Telstar Library. The volume is published by the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of New York, Inc. Several members of the board were of the opinion that it should be grouped with other religious texts in the library.

A well-drilling bid in the amount of $2,470.50 for the new elementary school in Woodstock from Goodwin's Well Drilling, Inc., was accepted by the directors, as was a bid of $28,581.12 from New England School Supply Company for school supplies.

Warrant articles for the Annual District Meeting to be held May 28 at Telstar Regional High School auditorium were approved and the warrant was signed.

During the meeting an executive session was held on matters pertaining to negotiations.

Directors not present Monday evening; Gail Sysko, Rick McVey, of Newry; Eva C. Twitchell, Woodstock.

The next regular meeting of the SAD #44 board of directors is scheduled for 7:30 on Monday evening, April 28, at Telstar Regional High School.

Varsity baseball has a new coach

The key to the success of the 1986 version of Telstar's baseball squad may come down to one question: can attitude and talent overcome inexperience? Returning only three starters, first year coach Levi Brown is looking towards youth to improve last season's 5-3 mark and advance the team into the Western Class C playoffs.

Brown, last year's JV coach, will start four freshmen and one sophomore in a revamped infield. He feels the first year players are not lacking in ability and that two are legitimate starters. He wants to develop and grow with the freshmen for the present as well as the future. The coach also stated the success of this year's team may depend on how quickly his young players learn from the mistakes they are destined to make.

Returning team strengths can be seen in captain Jim Fiske, a senior outfielder, and in a pitching staff led by Kenny Viger, also the team's leading hitter. The 1986 squad returns five lettermen from the 1985 team. Brown said one of his major jobs with the veterans has been improving their competitive attitude. "This is largely a bunch of athletes that have four soccer and basketball wins between them. They've grown to accept losing," said Brown. He says he explained to the team how, 10 years earlier, on a squad he played a major role in, the varsity Rebels won 36 in a row and had a definite "winning attitude." He told them three to four current players could have started on that 1976 team and this year's team is not lacking in the ability to reach success.

Different from last year, the Rebels are no longer part of the league which they won. Due to Fryeburg's departure, the four-team league no longer exists. Telstar, which as last year's titlest had an automatic bid, must now qualify as an independent. Under the new Heal point system, teams make the Class C playoffs according to the amount of points earned during the season.

Added difficulty for Telstar comes in the points awarded for wins. A victory over a larger school, such as Mexico, counts for more than one over a smaller school, such as Buckfield. Telstar is handicapped because it does not play the higher-rated teams as much as others. Consequently, it can less afford a loss. "It's unfortunate, but we're going to need a 10-3 or 9-4 season to qualify. It's asking a lot, and our freshmen are going to have to come around," said Brown.

Due to its uncompetitiveness in other sports and location (a lot of teams don't want to travel this far into Western Maine), Telstar was voted out of the Mountain Valley Conference in 1978. As an independent it no longer regularly plays the higher-rated teams in the Heal point system.

John Menario announces for gubernatorial race

Despite the fact that his formal announcement was made in Presque Isle Monday, John Menario, of Portland, actually threw his hat into the governor's race in Newry, at a breakfast last Thursday at the Sunday River Inn.

Hosted by Steve Wight and John Todd, the breakfast session gave two dozen area businesspeople the opportunity to meet and question candidate Menario about his past and his vision for the future.

Mr. Menario had been city manager of Portland from 1967 to 1976. He then served as president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce before setting up his own consulting firm and real estate agency.

"It's amazing how much money you can make in real estate," he confided to the breakfasters. "It's criminal."

"Then why the hell do you want to get back into government?" Jim Hudson asked him.

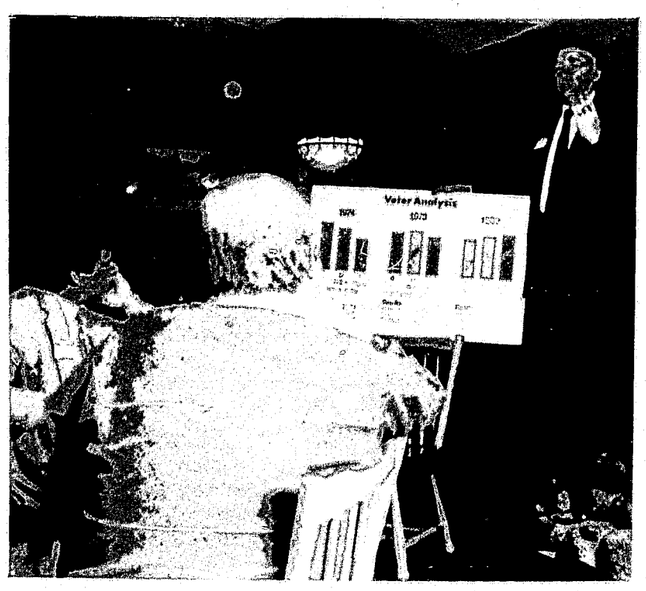
Mr. Menario replied that he loves working in government, and he thinks if he were governor he could improve the state environment for business enterprise. He would do this, he emphasized, while preserving the natural environment.

Elaborating on his ideas for improving the business climate of the state, he said, "There's no appreciation in government that time is money." Thus, he said, businesses are kept waiting while state agencies and the state legislature dawdle over requests for particular action.

Moreover, he said, state government is currently wasting resources by trying to spur economic growth in every area of the state. If elected, Mr. Menario said he would concentrate economic resources into what he termed "economic centers," and let economic activity spread from those centers.

In order to alleviate municipal economic hardship, Mr. Menario suggested that the state return to the towns and cities one cent of every five cents collected on the state sales tax. This, he argued, would allow municipalities to better cope with the effects of growth. The give-back would amount to $70 million, he said.

Mr. Menario, running as an independent, said he is not concerned about not having a party affiliation. He pointed out that independents now make up the largest block of registered voters in the state, an estimated 38 percent. In contrast, registered Republicans have slipped to 29 percent, while registered Democrats have remained around 33 percent of registered voters. "I'm betting on the fact that (independents) will move around as they look for a new governor," he said.



GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE JOHN MENARIO presented his views to two dozen interested local residents last Thursday at a breakfast at the Sunday River Inn.

Tom J. Winsor

Winsor announces candidacy for House District 49

Tom J. Winsor, of Waterford, announced this week that he is a Republican candidate for the Legislature from House District 49. This district includes the towns of Rangeley, Weld, Bethel, Byron, Gilead, Hanover, Lovell, Newry, Upton, Waterford, and surrounding plantations and townships.

"There are two major reasons I want to serve in the Legislature and they are jobs and taxes. In 1983 I went to work for President Reagan at the General Services Administration and Maine was rated 40th out of the 48 contiguous states in the image it portrayed toward job development. Now the same survey rates Maine 46th with only Michigan and Rhode Island listed as being more hostile toward business and job development.

"In 1984 only nine states taxed their people at a higher percentage of personal income than Maine, and I think it has gotten worse.

"I believe the challenge in the next several years will be to address these issues in a positive way. The legislature must provide an environment where lifetime high-paying jobs are created and stay in Maine, and taxes are brought down and kept down to a reasonable percentage of our income.

"My travels throughout the country in the last three years convinced me that while Maine is doing well in the eyes of some we have not received our fair share of the national boom.

"I believe my business experience combined with my successful budget-cutting as a federal employee will help me address these issues in a realistic and positive way."

Mr. Winsor is a 42-year-old, self-employed real estate broker who lives in Waterford with his wife Patricia and daughter Dawn. He grew up in Pittsfield, Maine, and is a graduate of the University of Maine.

He served on the Board of Directors of SAD #17 for five years. He is a former director of the Oxford Hills Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Winsor accepted an appointment to the General Services Administration to help implement President Reagan's programs. For two years he served as chief adminiatrator of GSA's building management program in Maine. He resigned March 1, 1986, to rebuild his business and to run for the Legislature.

OXFORD COUNTY JAIL

breath of fresh air. Following the escape of a prisoner from the "bullpen" (the recreation yard) last summer, authorities took down the basketball backboard and hoop, which facilitated the escape. Now, all there is to do in the narrow enclosure is walk around or stand around.

Sgt. Martin is still uncomfortable about having prisoners in the "bullpen", even with the hoop gone. He complains that the supports for the wire fence were put on the inside of the fence instead of the outside of the fence. "What they have now is ladders for inmates to climb over the fence. They need to bolster up the bullpen," he said.

Additionally, he said, if the state, or county, is going to make more money available for improving prison conditions, Sgt. Martin would like to have some to construct decent office space for the jailers. Right now, the supervisor's office serves as a watchtower and files room, as well as an office. "We don't have enough auxiliary space," he complained.

In addition to his office, the cellblocks, and the bullpen, there is also a drunk tank, an admitting area, a medical examination room, a darkroom, a kitchen, and a supply room.

Guarding the 25 prisoners presently in the jail are eight jailers, organized into four shifts.

Sheriff Alton Howe, who served on the governor's blue ribbon commission that drew up the suggestions to be discussed in the proposed special session, said the problem of overcrowding could be settled quickly without worrying where to house prisoners. "Most of the people we have are awaiting trial," he noted. If the trial procedures were speeded up, he said, the overcrowding in the county jails would be quickly alleviated.

He also pointed out that the most likely reform the Legislature might make in the penal system would be to allow county residents sentenced to do less than one year in the state penitentiary to do that time in the county jail.

KISS YOUR BUTT

GOOD-BYE.
There are two ways to kiss your butt good-bye. One is to quit smoking. The other is to keep smoking.
Quitting will make you feel better physically and better about yourself mentally. Continuing means you're a high-risk candidate for emphysema, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, or heart disease.
Nobody's saying that quitting is easy. But then neither is being one of the 340,000 Americans who die prematurely each year from smoking's effects.
So decide which it is you want to kiss good-bye: your cigarettes or yourself. And then if you want help in quitting, call the number below.

As I look from my window on this fifth day of April I feel sure dainty princess spring is very near. Her eyes are flashing sunlight on the water and her fragrant air.

I walked a few miles down the road this p.m. then came back to work on my grounds outside.

A lone red wing greeted me, as I started out. He was perched upon a bough, and piped a few melancholy notes as clear as the brook water, running over the ledges.

As usual, at this time of year, I stopped where the pussy willow grow. The silvery plush of the catkins were brown protective bud-scales.

Then on I went to see if any bush cranberries had survived the winter. I found one.

April is scarcely over its first week but the winter silence has ended.

As I worked my way through bushes to the piles of rocks, once blasted out to get feldspar, a crow flew over, perched in a tree and made himself known. He knows a good thing when he sees it. He seeks and finds for his home a land of plenty for he likes the bounty of the fields.

While sitting on a moss-grown rock I view a splendid panorama of mountains, valleys, and sky. The eyes roved to the ponds and meadows stretching down the valley. Then with eyes, lifting, passed over the upland pastures. In the background were the mountains, their slopes darkened and blued by distance. Here and there were drifting shadows, while above, arched the blue dome. Crows again cawed in the valley for such are the favorite haunts of the eastern crow of New England. They are common in numbers but uncommon in intelligence and canny ways. Some people like them and some don't.

Leaving here I went among trees everywhere growing with abandon, flinging branches skyward, seeking the sun. An inviting path around in and among them and on down the hill.

I was absorbed by new pictures and by thoughts fast exceeding each other until I reached the main road.

I saw spring shaping the future and considered myself fortunate once more to be a part of its miraculous beginning.

Clyde is still unable to get about much and now Leonas is unable to do much.

It is nice to see the ice out in our pond and to watch the blue herons and ducks busy near the far shore.

The Maine-ites are returning home from Florida. The Halls from Casco have left as of April 1 for their home. Others will be heading north very soon.

Lenwood Andrews will soon be on his way as the Old Parisian Orchestra and others will be entertaining at the West Sumner Grange Hall with a dance on May 10. Arland Farrar will be baking beans in the ground for the usual baked bean supper served by the Pleasant Pond Grangers and Tri Town Ambulance Service at 6 p.m. Keep May 10 on your mind. Come and have a good time.

The syrup year has been rather poor this year. The weather has been too warm. The snow is about gone now and the sap must have warm days and snappy, cold nights to run well. It is too bad as those who work in the sap-woods put in a lot of hard hours.

Olive Davis attended Franklin Grange with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks Monday night. They were at the South Paris day meeting Saturday and Saturday night they attended the reception for Bertha Benoit's son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. David Benoit, who were married recently. His mother, Bertha Benoit, gave the buffet supper with the help of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks and cousin, Richard Felt, as helpers.

Sunday, Marta Clements and Olive Davis attended the Universalist Church meeting held at Richard Perham's studio and enjoyed the demonstration of the big organ as well as the sermon given by the pastor, Herbert Weeks.

To those away I would say, we had a covering of snow Sunday night (April 6) followed by rain and Tuesday the white stuff was mostly gone but it was still raining. The daffodils in front of the house are well-budded and other perennials are breaking the turf, like tulips, etc.

Esther Davis has been ill with a stomach virus but is better at this writing. It took her strength so she concluded it could be intestinal flu.

West Paris

By VIVA WHITMAN

They say that April showers bring May flowers so there should be a lot of them after the snow of Sunday (April 6) and rain, also. Of course yesterday was a rainy day and today, certainly the flowers should grow good. I have seen crocuses and hyacinths so far in a few places and they are pretty and make one believe that Spring is here. The air is still cold and damp but sure enjoyed the few good warm days we have had and look forward to more like it. The rain makes the small brooks and tributaries overrun and spill out into the fields etc., but that is typical of Spring.

We have had several robins for the past couple of weeks and they herald the arrival of Spring, or are just anxious to get back north. I think sometimes they get here a little ahead of time and wonder how they survive but they seem to. Lots of little juncoes and some sparrows to watch but now that the snow is gone, our squirrels don't eat as much and I do love to watch them when they are around. I am always sorry to see one lying in the road where it hasn't made it across the before a car. On our way to the doctor's yesterday, one was in the road and Russell really pushed on the horn to get him out of the road before he got hit by oncoming cars. We always take care if we see one but some folks don't. My car has quite a horn on it and the folks coming toward us probably wondered why we were trying to get the squirrel out of the road but as I said, we don't like to run over them. They are one of God's creatures and have their purpose on earth as we do.

Lawrence cut up the wood he had hauled out back by his cellar door and has gotten most of it, anyway, split to out into the cellar for next year or to pile it up. I don't know which he has in mind at the moment. It is good to have it done ahead and know you have ready for the coming year. It is so much lighter around where he has cut so many trees. It will let light and sunshine in onto the garden space Russell worked so hard on last fall and we will hope we will be able to have a good garden. The way they have cut food stamps, one has to do something if they are to eat nutritionally, as needed.

With me used up with this cold, flu, allergies or whatever the combination, we didn't get to Pomona, West Paris Grange, or to Franklin Grange last night. I'm afraid I'm the one to blame for our staying home but can't seem to help it. Got some different medication yesterday and hope it will help.

Wynona and Michael wanted to go to the dog show Mike's father was judging in Scarborough on Saturday and Sunday so brought the girls up for Grandma and Uncle Joe to enjoy for a night but it turned into two nights as Mike's father nearly got bitten by a dog and needed things for his leg which he hurt in getting back from the dog. The girls were good as usual so didn't really mind. They take one's mind off their troubles and make the sun shine brighter with their smiles and love.

In talking with my daughter-in-law this morning, I found there are a bunch of children from school going to Washington on April 21 for a visit and tour. They will be gone for three days and two nights, going by chartered bus to Boston and then flying on from there for their trip. She thought there might be 60 of them going, what a lovely experience for the young folks to see the country. Wish I were one of them that was going.

Mollyockett Sportsman's Club of West Paris are still planning the program for hunters who need tests to get the licenses to hunt. It is to be the week of school vacation and will be held two hours each night at the Legion Hall and on Saturday, a chance to go out on the rifle range and practice. There will also be compass reading taught for those interested, whether for hunting or just for going hiking. We don't like to hear of people getting lost and knowing to read the compass would help. There is no cost for this program, just show up if interested. They are also going to be putting up a Christmas tree for the town to enjoy. There is to be a park where the old building was torn down by the post office and store and a memorial plaque will be put up. The plans are to put the Christmas tree in place this month. These things will be a wonderful addition to the town. The Sportsman's Club will be having their next meeting at Howard and Audrey Miller's the first Saturday in May. As the attendance is small at times, they decided to meet at homes instead of renting the legion hall and save money for better and more practical purposes. I think they are doing good and wish them well.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lovejoy, Jr., and girls went with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mack for an evening of shopping and had supper out to make the evening a good one last Saturday.

West Paris Grange is still working hard on getting the money for the elevator and have raised at $1,500. With sales of food and what-nots as well as the paper drive, they are doing good. There have been some donations and that has helped also. Their next meeting will be April 17 and it will be an open meeting as they are giving out their citizenship award as well as giving a 75 year seal certificate to Alice Littlehale. That is quite record to belong to an organization for that many years. The following meeting in May will be youth night so hope many grangers will plan to attend both meetings. Good programs are being planned and I am sure all would enjoy them.

I should have called more people for news but run out of ambition from being laid up with these good old allergies etc. so hope all will forgive me. Hopefully next week will be better. We hope the bug that has made so many sick will get out of the air and give us all better health.

I would like to say that Mary Lovejoy told me she has some blueberries already as well as a few others she has talked with so they are telling us that spring has sprung. Maybe with enough signs, we can believe it and that will get us all on the road to feeling the new beginning of apring and summer to follow. Take care all.

THE FRIENDLY DRAGON

By Jered Heath
Crescent Park School

Once, long ago, there was a friendly dragon, but everyone was scared of him. One day he went to some kids who were playing and said, "Hi," and the kids ran away. He went to a village and everybody ran, but the dragon caught a person and brought him to his cave. The dragon told the man, "If you can make everybody in the village like me, I will give you anything you ask for."

The person said, "Will you g-give me g-gold and s-silver?"

The dragon said, "Yes, I will."

The man went to the village and told everybody what happened but not one believed him. He went back to the dragon and said, "It did not work."

The dragon went back to the village and everybody started to run. The dragon told everyone to stop, and they did.

The dragon said, "Why does everyone hate me so much? I try to be good to everyone."

Everybody felt sorry for him and elected that he was a good dragon. Everyone liked him and the man got his gold and silver.

Andover Library celebrates Library Week

The Andover Library has been a busy place this past week. Gerald Schachter, photographer, had some beautiful pictures on display, ranging from logging with oxen to city skylines at night.

On Thursday, in conjunction with National Library Week, a display was set up in the main aisle of the library. "A Blast from the Past"—the name of the display—includes a Nov. 11, 1948 front page from The Bethel Citizen, excerpts of town happenings from The Rumford Falls Times, a 1949 town report showing the librarian's report and several fiction and non-fiction best sellers.

In November 1948 the library was moved from the town hall to the old Universalist Church. Pictures of past librarians Alice Thurston, Margaret Learned, Marion Bodwell and Evelyn Bell are also in the display, with notations by each one.

"Get the Scoop" is this year's theme for Library Week, and ice cream cones were given to all who attended the library last Thursday. A research game was played to find special bookmarks within the library. Recipes of favorite ice creams were compiled from members of the library and used as hand-outs.

CHRISTIAN HUTCHINS found the prize bookmark during the National Library Week celebration at the Andover Library last week.

East Andover

By LAURA HUTCHINS

Despite the rain and snow we have received this week the smell of spring is in the air.

Raymond Hutchins visited with Bernard last Friday.

I went to Bryant Pond on April 4 where I spent the day babysitting my three grandchildren, while their mother went to a doctor's appointment in North Conway, N.H.

A doe and two fawns (last year's) invaded our garden spot and surprised Bernard on Tuesday. They have cleaned up last year's brocolli tops, dried bean plants and kale that was starting up. They have left tracks all over the garden, indicating that they have been back (unseen). This is a first since I came here.

Bernard has been fighting this virus bug for two weeks. Now I have it and had to go to the doctor on Tuesday to get antibiotics. Sure takes the wind out of one's sails in a hurry.

David Hutchins visited us Tuesday night and brought us a jar of delicious maple syrup. It has been a bad season for making it this year.

Phyllis Farrar of South Andover called me this week to say they had a pair of bluebirds down there.

Members and friends of the Ladies Aid Society gathered at the Christian Education Building on Tuesday where Fonnie Hall entertained with tales of happenings during the days of her teaching career. A short business meeting was followed by a potluck luncheon, enjoyed by all. The next meeting is April 22 at the C.E.B. with Cheryl Titcomb of Farmington showing us how to make parchment lamp shades. Should be very interesting. All are welcome.

On Wednesday of this week two large flocks of geese were seen flying over. We have had some new kind of bird at the feeders this week. They are the same size as a pine siskin with the coloring on their back much the same, but they had rosy colored breast and a rusty colored diamond on their head. I thought they were red polls, but they are smaller and the coloring quite different. Can anyone tell me what they are?

Nine members of the East Andover Community Club met on April 8 at the home of Charlotte Sennett, with Mary Thurston as co-hostess. The members voted to give fruit plates to Sandra Clement and Clay Fyrberg, who have recently been hospitalized. Many cards had been sent out to community residents this past month. The secretary read thank-yous from several of the community residents who received the Easter fruit plates, also from Ride-In '86 and from Mr. and Mrs. Lester White. A successful Scotch auction was held and another one will be held at the next meeting, May 13 at the home of Evelyn Bell with Eldora Jones as co-hostess. Refreshments were served and a social evening was enjoyed. It was noted that the following seven Andover students are in the Telstar senior class: Allyson Belanger, daughter of Elizabeth and David Belanger; Martha Bell, daughter of Albert Bell and the late Sadie Bell; Richard Bodwell, son of Elizabeth and James Bodwell; Kimbalie Deanis, daughter of Helen and Gerald Deanis; Jennifer Hutchins, daughter of Jeanette and Arthur Hutchins; Todd Porter, son of Joye Porter; and Tammy Holmes, daughter of Wilmia and Lawrence Holmes.

West Paris

By MIRIAM INMAN

On April 1, the West Paris Senior Citizens met at the Legion Hall for a potluck dinner and meeting. There were 29 present. Get-well cards were sent to Avis Ellingwood, Doris Slattery, Albert Downing and Ronald Ross. A silent auction was held after the meeting. The next meeting will be May 6 at the Legion Hall, preceded by a potluck dinner. There will be a discussion about trips to be taken later in the year.

On Saturday, April 19, the Universalist Church will be having a rummage sale at Goodwill Hall from 10 a.m. until noon. From 1 to 2 p.m. there will be a bag sale. Anyone having rummage to donate may bring it to the hall on Thursday and/or Friday evenings. There will be someone there to accept it.

West Paris Historical Society will meet at the historical building on Monday, April 21, for a potluck supper at 6 p.m. and meeting to follow. The supper committee is Joyce Lamb and Miriam Inman. The program will be a slide presentation by Penny Kurtz, Paris Hill.

On Wednesday, April 23 the Universalist Church board meeting will be held at Goodwill Hall at 7 p.m.

Last Sunday morning over 30 gathered at the music room of Richard Perham to hear beautiful music from his newly-acquired theater organ. It was truly a wonderful way to start the day. After a short service, the coffee hour has held at the church.

Selectmen Gary Wing and George Hooper attended the Central Maine Assessors Association Workshop in Waterville. The Seminar is designed for the newly-elected aessessors.

George Hooper asked me to remind all Woodstock residents of the rules and regulations of the transfer station. With spring fever and the rakes and shovels out, remember to take these rakings to the stump dump in Greenwood (hours, Monday, 8 a.m. - 12 noon; Saturday, 9 a.m. - 12 noon, or by appointment, 527-2254). Please do not harass the station attendant. He is doing a good job for us, a job most of us would choose not to do. Remember the glass recyling project, it saves us dollars. We pay by the pound to have waste hauled away.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, April 7 with 29 present. State Deputy and Junior Deputy, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bisbee, were present for instruction. Mr. Bisbee spoke. Next meeting April 21 is open house, honoring some citizens, and a tasting party. Six apple pies were brought and judged. Lettie Brooks won first prize, and Olive Davis, second. Aprons were judged. A short Easter program was held with Lettie Brooks doing the reading, and Joyce Hoyt, Lucy Robbins, Mary Billings, and Alice Hoyt lighting the candles and everyone singing the songs. Closing thought by Olive Davis. The visitors spoke. Refreshments were served by Florence Gustafson, Lucy Robbins, Barbara Felt and Alice Hoyt.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Glines, Jonathan and Jolyn, Danbury, N.H., were weekend guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Ring. Saturday guests were also Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ring, Freeport.

There will be a bottle drive on Saturday, April 19, to benefit the 5th and 6th grades on their trip to Boston. The gym will be open from 10 to 2 so you can leave your bottles at the Woodstock Elementary School.

The guest minister at the Universalist Church on April 20 at 9 a.m. is Rev. Peter Richardson, Kennebunk. Welcoming committee is Shirley Hudson and Carol Fiske, Bethel.

Thursday, April 17 at 2:30 and 6 p.m. Awana Children's Rallies with special speaker, Miss Edna Zuran (CEF).

Franklin Grange #124 will meet on Monday, April 21, for an open house to honor a citizen with the community award. Everyone is welcome to this meeting at 7:30 p.m.

The Woodstock High School Alumni Association met on Tuesday with seven members present. It was good to welcome some different people at this meeting. The banquet will be June 14 at Telstar Regional High School. The alumni will put on the Senior Citizens dinner in May. The alumni again are offering $50 scholarships to any Telstar senior who had a parent or grandparent who graduated from WHS. Next meeting is May 6.

Frances Adams was hostess for the evening and conducted a "trash and treasure"sale, also served delicious refreshments after the meeting.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

The following is a modern and unflattering view of humanity by a Nobel Prize winning author. Yet how true it often is —

"I see how much you care about the way people look at you. It matters too much to you. And there are people who take advantage of that. They haven't got anything of their own and they'll leave you nothing for yourself. They want to put themselves in your thoughts and in your mind, and that you should care for them. It's a sickness. But they don't want you to care for them as they really are...You have to be conscious of them, but not as they are, only as they love to be seen...I stand in awe of the genius of our race. But a large part of this genius is devoted to lying and seeming what you are not... How rare is simple thought and pureheartedness." —Saul Bellow

We all want to be liked, but we can care too much about the opinion of others, who probably only care that we think of them as superior to ourselves. It becomes a vicious circle. We need to learn to take others as they are and hope they will accept us on the same footing. Unfortunately, as Bellow suggests it may be too much to hope.

Calvary Congregational Church

Rev. Donald Grover's message last Sunday, "Letters to the Saints" was from Acts 15:23-35; Meditation, II Samuel 7:28, "Thou art that God, and thy words be true"; Responsive Reading, Eph. 6:10-18. The choir sang We are More than Conquerors. Marge Stinson and Glenna Allen sang Only Believe. During missionary moments, a letter was read from Jim and Polly Browne, formerly of Bethel, missionaries who are planning to return to Panama in June. Pastor Grover read a poem entitled Atheistic Holliday. The love loaves will be collected April 20.

April 18 at 6 p.m. the teenage group and invited guests will be holding a food fast with sponsors. The money collected will go to a needy cause. A film will be shown, games and other entertainment, as the kids give up food until the following day.

Warning to all! The Lord is coming! Be ready! Be ready! Who said so?

Christ Himself declared it, "I will come again" John 14:1-3.

Angels said it, "This same Jesus...shall so come" Acts 1:11.

Paul taught it, "The Lord Himself shall descend" I Thess. 4:16.

North Paris

By EVELINE B. VATCHER

Was anybody surprised by my forecasted snowstorm on April 6? I study the almanac and more snow is predicted for April 17. Oh, well.

Earl Cordwell was operated on again on April 9 to clean the wound up and hopefully will be home on Friday. Faye Abbott is helping Mrs. Cordwell clean house.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Rhoda Vatcher who passed away at Clover Hospice April 6.

Callers at Lawrences: Mr. and Mrs. Corry Bonney Jr. and Lisa, Patty Bean, Joe and Eveline Vatcher, Cornie and Danny McAuliffe, Odell Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Roger LaCroix.

Mr. and Mrs. William Labbe, Cornelius and Daniel McAuliffe went to Saugus, Mass., Tuesday for calling hours at the funeral parlor for her mother, Rhoda Vatcher, and the funeral on Wednesday. Mr. Labbe also reported to Fort Devens Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vatcher went to Danvers, Mass., Tuesday for an early birthday visit with Joe's mother on her 95th birthday, but could stay only a few minutes. Mrs. Vatcher is a bit better, but doesn't want to eat, but she wants to come to Maine soon. The Vatchers stayed at a motel, in Saugus and two grand nephews stayed with them. All the nephews wanted to sleep at the motel even if they had to sleep on the floor for their aunt's TV was on the bum, but only two children were allowed in a room.

Phoebe Shawnwhite, son Stephen and wife, Malden, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. William Labbe and boys, Howard Anderson were at Joe Vatcher's Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vatcher, Lynn, Mass., were at South Paris on business Thursday afternoon and they called on Uncle Joe and Aunt Eveline Vatcher.

Eveline heard by the grapevine that sister-in-law Agnes Coffin has the shingles and she has Eveline's heartfelt sympathy and she doesn't believe they will disappear in a few days. Eveline has had hers since Feb. 20, 1985 and still going strong. It's a great life if you don't weaken.

Schools will be on next week. May we have good weather for a change.

How can we plant peas when it snows so much?

The Greenwood Historical Society announces with pride that there will be a 55 minute film showing entitled Dawn of America, which is about Maine history, at the next meeting of the society Wednesday, May 7. Be sure to make plans to attend.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet Tuesday, April 22, at 6:30 p.m. at the fire station.

The Ladies Circle will meet Wednesday, April 16, at the Sunday School Room at 1:30 P.m.

S.A.D. #44 vacation week is coming up April 21 to 25.

There was an Industrial Management meeting at the Bethel Inn Monday evening. Those attending were Paul Kimball, Bob Betz, Reynold Jordan, Glendon Kimball, John Chase and Harry Swan Jr. The Industrial Management Club plans to sponsor a ball-bearing seminar at Telstar Regional High School beginning at 5 p.m. with a supper. This is for maintenance personnel of the local mills.

Charlotte Cole entertained Gladys Jordan and Vera Cross at supper Thursday evening and then they all went to The Music Man at Oxford Hills High School. Elton Cole was in the production.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mills visited his sister, Mrs. Earl Colby and family Sunday and had dinner with them. They also visited a short time Friday evening.

Todd Swan was among those from Telstar Middle School who went by bus to the Mexico Recreation Hall to attend the career awareness day. They had booths that featured different colleges and the armed services.

Vera Cross gave a birthday supper and sing-along for Grace Day Friday evening. Besides the hostess and honored guest those attending were a cousin, Zylpha Emmons, Old County Road, and Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbs.

Mrs. John Mills took Vivian Chase to Rumford to the eye doctor Tuesday afternoon. It was a pleasant trip in spite of the unpredictable weather of the past week. Certainly this weather has been proof of the old adage, "If you don't like Maine weather, wait five minutes."

HEALTH CENTER PHYSICIAN'S ASSISTANT JAN WHITWORTH visited the Ethel Bisbee School's kindergarten recently to talk with the students about good hygiene.

Telstar exchange students voice views

Telstar's two foreign exchange students, Hege Dammerud from Oslo, Norway and Gerald Nessmann from Feldkirchen, Austria agree that American teenagers are less intested in global affairs than their European counterparts.

"We hear more news and talk about it more. Many people here would rather watch soap operas than watch coverage of an important news event," Ms. Dammerud said.

One reason she gave for the difference is Europe's close geographic proximity to areas of unrest and concern.

"In Europe, everything is much closer. Perhaps Americans don't care as much because everything is so far away... Libya is very far away," Ms. Dammerud said.

"Europe has had all the world wars, too," she added. "We hear a lot about the wars. Our grandparents talk about it frequently. So it very real to us. America's last war at home was a long time ago."

Mr. Nessmann commented that Europeans are very concerned about the relationship between Russia and the United States. "We follow arms talks very closely. We want the Soviets and the Americans to work things out, because we will be directly affected if things are not," he added.

"We (Norway) even share a border with Russia," Ms. Dammerud added.

Mr. Nessmann offered another reason why, perhaps, Americans are not as interested in global issues. "I think Americans take their freedom for granted," he said. "They don't even vote when they have the opportunity. Sometimes only 45 percent of the population votes. Everyone in Austria votes. Perhaps it is because we were a kingdom only 80 years ago."

"However, Americans are very patriotic. The way they stand up and salute their flag. I don't see that at home."

Both students have enjoyed their year in Maine very much. They have been impressed by the willingness of their host families to take strangers into their homes for a whole year. "Americans are very open," Ms. Dammerud said.

BASEBALL SIGN-UP TIME

On April 28, there will be a baseball sign-up for all youngsters ages 6-16 at Crescent Park School under the canopy in front of the school. This sign-up is for T-ball, farm team, little league, and colt league.

SPECIAL FILM AT BETHEL GOSPEL CENTER

The life story of Fanny Crosby will be shown on Sunday, April 20 at 6 p.m. at the Bethel Gospel Center, Route 26, Bethel. Everyone is invited to this feature length motion piction, there will not be any admission charged.

Fanny Crosby, blinded from infancy, became one of the best known hymn writers of all time. A friend of presidents, active in the ministry of D.C. Moody, she appeared before large audiences nation wide. Some of the hymns she wrote, which most of us have sung, include "Blessed Assurance," "To God Be The Glory," and "Praise Him, Praise Him."

Today more than half a century after her death, Fanny Crosby continues to proclaim a message both valid and compelling.

Students learn about vocations in Career Week

What a lot of the Telstar students learned during the recently completed career week was that they wouldn't want to be in the shoes of the person they worked with.

Kevin Powell spent the week with Maine's Senator George Mitchell, in Washington D.C. His comment afterwards: "I wouldn't want to be a senator." His reason: it's too hectic running from meeting to meeting, often until late at night.

Ken Viger had much the same impression of Roger Conant's job at Casco Northern's Bethel branch bank. "Being a bank manager didn't exactly thrill me," he said. "You always hear about bankers' hours, but we were there by 8 and worked 'til 7 or 7:30 at night."

Hege Dammerud, who comes from a big city in Norway, thoroughly enjoyed the week she spent working at the Laban Sheep Farm, in Northwest Bethel, because she was able to make a finished product from raw material (a sweater from a fleece). But she wouldn't want to make a career of it. "I wouldn't want to live on a farm," she said. "You can never get away."

Some of the students, however, were more than pleased by the careers they were exposed to. Said Marsha Moxcey: "I was really excited to find something that fit me." She was interning as an assistant producer at WCBB and, as a result of the experience, decided to change her career goal to communications, from science. What she particularly liked was the variety. "Every experience is different. Nothing is the same."

Dave Denison helped to program computers at Tab Office Products, in San Francisco, Calif. He loved it. "It was fantastic," he said. The company liked him, too, and left open the possibility of a summer job there.

Marie Henley, who was already thinking of a career in health care, had her predisposition reinforced by working at the Market Square Health Care Facility, in South Paris, during Career Week. She had the chance, while there, of working in the various departments of the nursing home. "I liked working in the activities department," she said.

Glori Bolio, who expects to be an elementary school teacher, tried her hand at it, working with, and sitting in for, Mrs. Shimamura at Woodstock Elementary School. "They were super little people," she said of Mrs. Shimamura's students. But she also commented on the difficulties of being thrown into a new situation. "Now I know what a substitute feels like."

Michelle Cummings, Jay Hastings and Hunee Bolio all worked with People's Express, at the Portland Jetport. The most exciting part for all of them was being flown down to People's main terminal, in Newark, N.J., to work as baggage handlers looking for missing pieces of baggage. Sorting through the contents of some of the pieces of luggage was not too comfortable, they admitted.

On the whole, however, they were pleased by the experience—even Michelle, who is not really interested in travel and tourism as a career. "It's an exciting field," she said. "It would be inteesting to do, but I still want to be a veterinarian."

Jay and Hunee were pleased that the experience met their expectations, since they expect to go into the field. Jay hopes to be an airline pilot, while Hunee is interested in travel and tourism in general.

Martha Bell's Career Week experience also pleased her, and, in fact, led to a summer job at Filene's in the Maine Mall, where she spent Career Week. In college she expects to major in business, and, as a result of her week's experience at Filene's, now knows she wants to specialize in retail management. "It's always changing," she said of the nature of running a retail department in a big store.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Both students and faculty at the Agnes Gray and Legion Memorial Schools in West Paris have been extra busy of late. The third ranking period has drawn to a close, work completed, ranks figured and report cards sent home. Parent-teacher conferences were held on April 11 with almost perfect attendance—time well spent for all concerned, students, parents and teachers!

The library was turned into a "book store" for three days while the Scholastic Book Fair was in progress. An excellent variety of books for all ages was offered. This year no posters were included to tempt the youngsters—just good reading! Special thanks to sixth grade students Lori Bean, Maylene Cummings, Gwen Murphy and Delsey Andrews who helped tend the book fair while the teachers were in conferences.

Both students and faculty have been working hard to prepare for April 17 and our "in school" writers' workshop. The students put a lot of effort into their writings. They also were the designers of the cover and divider pages for the final book of student writings.

The title for our book "Young Authors Are Here!" was by Amy Tikander, Grade 5. The art work on the cover was drawn by Shane Record, Grade 6. Each grade has a section of writings with every child included and each grade has a cover page done by a student from that grade: Kindergarten, Jeannine Dembski; Grade 1, Amey Coffin; Grade 2, Jason Bradeen; Grade 3, Andrew Leach; Grade 4, Hazel Herrick; Grade 5, Shelley Robinson and Justin Wormell; Grade 6, Delsey Andrews.

Faculty and staff did their share also. Hours of typing, running off copies, collating and binding the final results kept us hopping. Special thanks to our secretary, Alta Pierce, Art Turner, our elementary supervisor, and Sally Merrill of the main office for all their help.

Every student will receive a copy of the book and the extra copies will be placed in local libraries and other public places so the published writings of the West Paris students can be read and enjoyed by as many as possible.

We are now beginning the final quarter of the school year. One of the class room programs with which we ending up the year is our CAP program.

CAP stands for Children Are People. It is a program designed for children K-6, and the objective is chemical abuse prevention. A sequence of lessons has been developed to build the children's self-image, to help them feel good about themselves, to help them understand stress and to help them learn to make decisions to deal with many kinds of stressful situations. Drug and alcohol abuse and prevention are discussed and activities center around reasons why people get involved and alternative solutions. Our goal is to help children realize that they do have choices, that they do have control over themselves and that they can say no to drugs and alcohol.

Sixteen children were signed up during kindergarten registration. If there are any more children who will be five before Oct. 15, please call or come to the office of the Agnes Gray School and let us know. Even though it's early, it will help us with our planning for next year.

A scrape is a scrape and a recent one was a little comical, a little ridiculous, a lot sad and some scary, but there was no alledgedly's there. Them bugs changed the flavor of my free flowing green journalism.

The weather changed to more seasonal. Trees again snow-laden. It is met with a variety of reactions.

In a nearby, not too urban hardware store, I asked for a spud. The clerk looked at me for a long moment and said, "You want a potato?" I almost choked, but I kept my face straight as I explained I needed a tool to peel logs.

Laurie had a Spring Fling party celebrating the passing of winter and spring closing of the restaurant where she works. Fellow employees and other friends were guests.

Goldie Bergeron, Erwin and Gloria Dunn of Temple were guests of the Bergerons.

Elsie Fuller had the misfortune to fall in Elsie Douglass' barn where the ladies were admiring the new born kittens. She broke and dislocated a hip. Ellie Lecomte, R.N. was called to help and friends got her to Norway hospital for treatment. I'm sure she will appreciate letters and cards. It is possible she may be transferred to Maine Medical Center.

The selectmen held their regular meeting Monday with several guests including the road commissioner present. The agenda included discussion of the building permits and the poor condition of the town roads. Connie was put in charge of the three-cornered piece to landscape with volunteer help from Donald Scott.

Andover School news

Kindergarten will attend school in the afternoon on that day rather than in the morning.

On April 5, Robin Palmer, grade 4, Keith Smith, grade 4, Suzann Richardson and Andy Hutchins, grade 5, attended the Young Authors' Conference at the University of Maine, in Farmington.

Congratulations to the Young Scientists of the Month: Kieriston Thibodeau, kindergarten; Megan Meisner, grade 1; Monica Baker, grade 2; Ben Bartlett, grade 3; Keith Smith, grade 4; and David Bishop, grade 6.

Story Hour is from 3 to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays, under the supervision of Anna Thurston. The children really enjoyed the performances.

UPDATE ON HEALTH CURRICULUM

For the past several months the Health Curriculum development committee for Telstar Regional High School has been meeting to establish a curriculum. The committee is made up of a variety of individuals including teachers, parents, and health related professionals. Community involvement has been encouraged from the start. Questionnaires and comment sheets were issued to parents and students. This aided in determining the needs, concerns, and interests of the community.

A presentation was made during an open house held at the high school to promote community understanding.

Members of the committee divided into sub-committees to work on curriculum outlines for the different areas to be covered in the course. Deadlines for completion were set. The entire committee later met to review each area. Here concerns and opinions were voiced and changes and additions were made. Each subject area was typed and copies made for each committee member, then distributed for final review. The committee met again to make recommendations and to endorse the curriculum before taking it to the Education Committee of the SAD #44 Board of Directors.

Bethel Emergency Ambulance and Rescue Service

Congratulations to Mary Buckman, Will Crowell and Paul Marcolini for passing their latest state licensing exam. We are proud and please to have thre more EMT-EOA's with is. Good luck!

The regular meeting of the BEARS will beheld on April 20 at 6:30 p.m. Also, there will be an EMT refresher session on April 27—stay tuned to find out if it's going to be in the afternoon and/or evening.

The BEARS are looking again. This time we need people who are willing to do some duty during the day during the week. Even one day a month, just 12 hours, would be a help—a BIG help. If you have the training (ASA or EMT) even from another state, please give Arlene a call at 824-2744 and find out how to get your state of Maine license, it's not difficult. And 12 hours a month really isn't much time, but it certainly would be appreciated in a big way.

Safety Tip

This week's safety tip concerns Maine Law. In part, the emergency vehicle law states that when you approach an emergency vehicle which is using its lights and siren, from either direction, you will pull off to the right side of the road and come to a complete stop. This does not mean continue down the side of the road—it means STOP. Ambulances, fire trucks and cruisers all operate under the law which says we will not use our lights and sirens except in emergencies. By not coming to a complete stop, you are breaking the law—and you might be responsible for an accident. So, follow the law. The next time you hear that wailing siren, you will see flashing lights and you should get off the road and STOP. The life you save may be your own.

Volunteers needed by Extension Service

Do you know someone who needs a new challenge, a chance to do something different and feel more worthwhile? Ask him or her to help with a volunteer activity, the Cooperative Extension Service suggests.

In Maine, more than 15,500 volunteers lend their talents to Extension programs in agriculture, forestry, family living, 4-H, and more. Each year, counties throughout the state honor their outstanding Extension volunteers, recognizing the valuable contributions they have made to Extension programs.

At the annual meeting of the Oxford County Extension Association, Kay Daniels, West Paris, and Doug Robinson, South Paris, were honored for their volunteer leadership in 4-H, and Albert Soule, South Paris, was honored for his role in forestry education.

Take off studded tires

Motorists are advised that state law prohibits the use of studded tires on Maine roads after May 1.

The state police chief said the law does not prohibit the use of tire chains when required for safety because of snow, ice or other conditions tending to cause a vehicle to slide or skid.

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

The Bethel Historical Society has acquired a copy of Myrtle Kittredge Lovejoy's This Was Stroudwater for its archival collections. This book contains a photograph and numerous references to Leonard Bond Chapman (1834-1915) who spent his life in the Stroudwater section of Portland but had strong Bethel ties. One of his ancestors was Edward Bond who in about 1795 acquired the large island in the Androscoggin River that still bears his name. Bond married in 1800 Sarah, the daughter of Abraham Russell, one of the town's earliest settlers. Leonard B. Chapman married a Bethel girl, Ruby F., the daugher of Edmund Merrill Sr. Mr. Chapman spent much of his life collecting and writing local history and genealogy. His research relating to Stroudwater was extensively used by Mrs. Lovejoy in her book. But Mr. Chapman was also greatly interested in Bethel's past and wrote a series of long articles for a number of years (from about 1910 to 1913) on the history of the town, correcting and enlarging upon earlier versions by Dr. Nathaniel T. True (1812-1887) and Dr. William B. Lapham (1828-1894). Chapman's historical sketches are currently being collected by Society researcher Mrs. Agnes Haines so they will be readily accessible and can be indexed for easy reference by researchers and genealogists in the future.

The Society has also acquired a copy of Gorhamtown: A Pictorial History which will be a useful complement to Hugh D. McLellan's History of Gorham, Maine (1905), already in the archives.

MOOSE HUNT APPLICATION DEADLINE IS APRIL 30

Time is running out for sportsmen who want a chance at being among the 1,000 Maine moose hunting permit holders next fall.

Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn Manuel says that the deadline for applying for the 1986 moose permit drawing is April 30.

Nine hundred Maine residents and 100 nonresidents will be issued moose permits, by lottery, to participate in the Oct. 20-25 hunt.

Resident application blanks are available from any office of the Fish and Wildlife Department and from resident hunting and fishing license agents.

Nonresidents may obtain their application blanks by writing to Moose Application, Maine Fish and Wildlife Dept., Sta. 41, Augusta, Maine 04333. Including a self-addressed envelope with the request will ensure a prompt return.

Nonrefundable application fees are $5 for Maine and $10 for nonresidents and aliens.

Manuel says the area open to moose hunting has been considerably expanded this year to include sections of western, central and eastern Maine. "We made this change, with authorization of the legislature, to open up some excellent country with high moose populations through the middle portion of the state."

The new southern limit of the moose hunting area follows highways running through Rangeley, Bingham, Howland, Eddington, and Woodland.

Hunters to receive 1986 moose hunting permits will be determined at a public drawing in June.

Each person selected may then name another person to accompany him or her on the hunt.

Moose hunting permits cost $25 for residents and $200 for nonresidents and aliens. In addition permits, all moose hunters, including their subpermittees, must have a 1986 Maine license to hunt big game. There are no other fees.

NOTES FROM

Evans Notch District

White Mountain National Forest

• Applications are now available for two positions in the Youth Conservation Corps (YOC) program on the Evans Notch Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest. The program will begin June 23 and run for eight weeks. Enrollees will earn the federal minimum wage and work 40 hours per week.

Projects such as trail and recreation area maintenance will be undertaken as well as some backcountry projects. Applicants must be 15 to 18 years old and must provide their own transportation to the District Office in Bethel. A physical exam will be required for the two individuals selected for the program.

Applications must be submitted by April 30. Selections will be made by a random drawing on May 1. For further information contact Wayne Millen or Mary Paine.

• District campgrounds will be opening for the season on May 16. Fees at all campgrounds on the White Mountain National Forest have been increased by $1 over last season's rates which is the first increase in the past three years. Information on developed recreation sites and fees is available at the District Office.

• With the arrival of spring comes the usual problems of soft road beds on the National Forest. Many roads are posted as closed to vehicular traffic. Individuals are asked to stay off these roads to prevent damage from ocurring to the driving surfaces.

• Three District employees recently returned from a fire detail to the southeastern U.S. Tom Wheeler, Tom Barton, and Rick McVey spent a week in the Great Smokey Mountain National Park in eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina assisting in forest fire suppression activities along with 17 other employees of the White Mountain National Forest. Unusually dry conditions throughout the south has created one of the worst spring fire seasons on record in the southeastern states. Crews from the Maine Forest Service, other states in the northeast, lake states, and southwestern U.S., were called to assist the southern U.S. areas in their fire suppression efforts.

• Anyone interested in selling firewood in campgrounds on the Evans Notch Ranger District this summer should contact the District Ranger by April 30 for details on this Special Uses Permit activity. Interested parties will be required to submit a sealed bid for the right to sell camp fire wood in the five District campgrounds between Memorial Day and Labor Day 1986.

Safety Tip of the Week

Spring is here, finally. The ice is out in the streams and rivers and most lakes. Before considering getting the boat or canoe out, take a few extra steps of precaution. Just because the ice is out doesn't mean the water is warmed up.

Life jackets are absolutely necessary at this time of year, and they don't do any good unless they are on. It is wise to stay near shore. Even with life jackets on, a person who is thrown from a boat will have little chance for survival due to the extremely cold water temperatures.

And don't boat alone in the cold waters.

Extension leads personal safari

The Cooperative Extension Service in Oxford County is leading a "Personal Safari" and is inviting the public to attend, free of charge.

"Personal Safari" is an adventure that encourages and guides participants while searching for and developing their potential. This workshop was developed with the belief that each individual is unique and special in his/her own way. Achieving individual potential results in personal growth and higher self-esteem.

"Personal Safari" is designed to allow participants to explore three areas that commonly inhibit personal development: self-image, assertiveness and communication, and stress management. Learning how to manage these problem areas increases your control over your life and lets you take charge of developing your potential.

A "Personal Safari" is a four-part seminar. Each evening will deal with a different topic. The series will be held at the Second Congregational Church on the corner of Main and Paris Streets in Norway from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays. Richard Pollock, M.S.W. and Wendy Legg Pollock, Extension Agent, will be leading the safari.

• April 15 and 22—Discovering Paths: Building self image and discovering personal uniqueness.

• April 29—Facing Jungles: Effective ways to assertively communicate and express yourself.

• May 6—Going Bananas: Techniques to manage stress.

Personal Safari is open to the public, free of charge. Space is limited! Please register for the safari by calling the Extension Office at 743-6329.

Gould students take part in playwriting workshop

Twelve Gould Academy students participated in a playwriting workshop sponsored by the Portland Stage Company at the Portland Performing Arts Center. A total of six area high schools were involved: Deering High School, of Portland; Edward Little High School, of Auburn; Gould; Morse High, of Bath; Mt. Ararat, of Topsham; and Old Orchard Beach High School.

Students attended a preliminary workshop and worked closely with Elizabeth Diggs, a well-known and successful playwright.

During the workshop, six Gould students created plots for their own plays and produced scripts. Lucia Owen, chairman of Gould's English Department, and other department faculty members, assisted the following in their efforts: Missy Ames, Hanover; Janet Blaisdell, Danbury, Conn.; Cheryl Caval, Wethersfield, Conn.; Kara O'Donnell, Bethel; Tim Hodsdon, Brownville,; Erica McLean, Rumford.

From the six, the scripts of Missy Ames and Tim Hodsdon were chosen to be read at the final workshop, on April 5, by members fo the Portland Stage Company's professional and intern acting companies. To see and hear one's own play brought to life on stage was very exciting for these future playwrights and may be just the spark to kindle future endeavors in the arts.

DEP approves hydro project in Gilead

The state Department of Environmental Protection last week approved an application by David Head to construct and operate a small hydro-electric generating plant on White Brook, in Gilead and Riley.

The turbines would be driven by a 350-foot head of water, about 5,000 feet upstream from where White Brook joins the Androscoggin River. The generator will be rated at 60 kw and is expected to produce about 360,000 kwh of electricity annually. The power will be sold to Central Maine Power, displacing about 600 barrels of oil that would be needed to produce a like amount of power in an oil-fired plant.

No dam or artificial impoundment will be necessary.

The approval by DEP had the following conditions attached:

- The developer must submit proof of final financing at least 30 days prior to the anticipated start of construction.
- A qualified wildlife biologist must perform a field investigation for peregrine falcon activity on Tumbledown Dick Mountain. If falcon nesting activity is discovered, construction will not begin until nesting is completed.
- All soil disturbed by construction must be re-vegetated.
- Public use of fish and wildfife resources shall be allowed to continue within the project area.

WEST BETHEL

Children's Center

The children at the center have been enjoying the season of spring with activities making construction paper flowers, planting flower seeds, and coloring rainbows. They have also enjoyed sponge painting, and new puzzles.

Rusty Seames of Northwest Bethel was a recent bright-eyed "Star of the Week." Blonde and perky Jeanie Day of Bethel has also shared of herself at "star" time. Both Rusty and Jeanie created their own posters and brought in some great family photos.

The Children's Center will be closed Monday, April 21, in observance of Patriot's Day.

Thanks go out to Lillian Brooks, Debbie Perry, and Kathy Sweetser for their help in the kitchen and classroom.

Lorraine Redman, social service aide at the center, is now recruiting children for the '86-'87 Head Start program year. Children should be four years of age on or before Oct. 15. It you are interested in finding out more about the program please call Lorraine at 835-3700.

The parent group recently held its last meeting of the year. They were very successful with fund raising efforts and again would like to say thank you to the center's many friends who have shown their support.

Parents would also like to thank SAD #44 kindergarten teacher Saundra Cohen for her excellent presentation to the group on the district's kindergarten programs.

The center is continuing its celebration of 10 years of service to the community, and anyone who is interested in seeing the programs first hand is welcome to come out to the center. Please call ahead (836-3700) so that the center staff can give you the tour.

NEW DRIVER AT THE SPEEDWAY: Bill Cox, of Rumford Point, will be driving the 02 car at the Oxford Plains Speedway this season. Cox purchased the 1977 Chevelle from Mark Cyr, who will be driving a Thunderbird this year. Cox will campaign in the Charger Division, in which, he says, the cars are very evenly matched. "You have to have quite a motor to be competitive," he says. His car's engine is a 250-hp straight six. Previously a sponsor of the car, Cox—who owns Bill's Citgo, in Mexico—says, "The car came up for sale, and I decided to give it a try." The other sponsors are Arbe's Carpets, of Rumford, McPherson Trucking, of Rumford Point, and Bud's Auto Body, of Mexico. The speedway opened for the season this past weekend.

Rotary Club notes

The Bethel Rotary Club held its luncheon meeting at The Sudbury Inn Tuesday. Visiting was Frank Ward, guest of John MacMunn.

Bob Saunders is now the Rotary Club's Rotary Information chairman. Bob talked about the meeting and attendance requirements established by Rotary International in order to maintain membership in Rotary. The topic was quite timely and informative.

Scott Dennis announced that the Bike-a-Thon will be Saturday, May 10. More info on this will follow.

The program chairman was Rick Whitney, and his speaker was Gerry Michaud, president of the Maine Press Association and marketing director of the Lewiston Sun-Journal, where he has been since 1974. Mr. Michaud is a Maine native and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. His area of responsibility encompasses the central zone of Maine—the Tri-County area. He provided a statistical analysis of the state's growth, education changes and family life factors. The presentation was enjoyed by the Rotarians and guests.

The second annual Community Service Award search got underway at this meeting, with the distribution of selection forms. The award presentation is scheduled for June 1986.

Physics workshop held

Sixteen physics teachers from Maine and New Hampshire met at Gould Academy for an American Association of Physics Teachers workshop entitled "Laboratory Interfacing Experiments Using Micro-Computers."

The all-day meeting was held March 21 under the direction of four physics teachers: Ann Billings, Deering High School, Portland; Thomas Ford, Gould Academy; Tim Kersey, Telstar Regional High School; and Dick Weirich, Rumford High School.

The workshop demonstrated how to use the ordinary Apple computers, which most schools have, to facilitate doing laboratory measurements of time, velocity, acceleration, frequency, and other variables. The micro-computer takes the place of expensive measuring instruments formerly required, thus enabling high school laboratories to do more exciting and interesting experiments.

The evening's program will highlight a Maine Assessment Test Interpretation for parents of eight graders, a coffee social hosted by the Telstar Spirit organization (a parent/teacher/student group), a half hour music program coordinated by Harry Davis, distribution of third quarter report cards and conference time with teachers. Student Council members from both schools will be available that evening as guides and assistants.

Guidance Director Dan Hart is looking forward to seeing all parents attending that evening, and says "The need for parent involvement doesn't end at the elementary level—it is even more important during these (middle/high school) years."
